Thank you for your cotinued partnership and support!

Dear friends and supporters:

A long-time client, Michael, came into one of CHN's offices to see his case manager for documents he needed related to assistance with housing. His case manager greeted him with a big smile and asked how he was doing. Michael was so happy that he was now earning enough money to rent his own apartment. With assistance from CHN's food bank, he's able to make his own meals at home and for the first time in many years, his HIV viral load was at an undetectable level. Michael beamed with pride as he shared this news! Michael smiled and told his case manager, "You know, you can really tell when someone truly cares about you!"

There are many stories like Michael's that remind us of why the work we do is still very important. Whether a client is coming to us for financial, housing or insurance assistance, counseling, oral health care or linkage to treatment and care, each of their stories are important. Today, most of the clients CHN serves are facing one or more barriers to treatment and care. Our case managers work with clients to assess and help meet their needs so that they can focus on their HIV treatment and care. Our prevention staff works with folx to help prevent the spread of HIV and other health conditions through HIV/STI testing, education and harm reduction programs.

Together, with your help, we continue to improve the lives of those we serve! Thank you for your continued partnership and support.

Sincerely,

Darrell Vigil

Denver's Gay Community
Coping with AIDS

BY PHIL NASH

A year ago most writers in the gay press were afraid to present AIDS as anything more than a medical phenomenon which mysteriously causing sickness and death primarily among gay men inhabiting large, coastal American cities. Isolating cases were reported in other non-coastal cities—even a few cases in Colorado. It was too soon to say that AIDS was being transmitted by sexual contact, and no one was bothered to put two and two together to draw this conclusion, he or she has been afraid to print it in the gay press for fear of strong reaction from a community which has increasingly defined itself in sexual terms over the last decade. All. No journalist of Denver Disease Center cases were reported almost one new case per Denver's rate of reporting exceeds the rate at which it is growing, essentially doubling every six months. All but only three cases were reported in the Denver metropolitan area, meaning that AIDS cases in Colorado are nearly 87% compared to about 75% nationally. He expects to see a total of 100 cases reported in Colorado by the end of the year.

From a fledgling 'project' within Colorado's LGBTQ Center, Colorado Health Network has emerged as Colorado's largest non-profit supporting those affected by HIV Colorado Health Network (CHN) is rich in history, having grown from a fledging project assisting those affected by a novel disease, to an organization with more than 165 staff members across six cities and a $34M annual budget.

In 2023, we celebrated the 40th anniversary of our founding. In subsequent years, each of our offices will celebrate four decades of serving communities across Colorado, as four of the state's five original AIDS service organizations merged in 2011 to become today's CHN.

The same year as CHN's founding, the Denver Principles were introduced, which served as a Bill of Rights for people living with HIV and became the cornerstone for advocacy by people living with many chronic conditions.

We're proud to have been a part of a more than four-decade fight to address stigma and fear and ensure that all Coloradans are treated with dignity and respect.

Today, the work continues as we lean into new challenges facing Colorado. Our history responding to HIV makes us uniquely qualified to take on today's emergent challenges serving those who are from marginalized and stigmatized communities.

CHN's Robert Riester, center, joins a panel discussion about the Denver Principles.

ACROSS OUR OPERATIONS
WE'RE INNOVATING AND PROMOTING A CULTURE OF EXCELLENCE

IT'S ALL ABOUT LIVING OUR VALUES

As we look ahead, Colorado Health Network will continue to be a lifeline for those affected by HIV and other health conditions, ensuring that no one faces this journey alone.

Our unwavering commitment to equity, dignity, and respect for all Coloradans and a culture of excellence in service delivery propels us forward.

OUR VALUES:

- Service
- Innovation
- Wellness
- Anti-oppression
- Integrity

WE COMMIT TO:

- ... addressing the evolving needs of our communities.
- ... pursuing transformative approaches to existing and emergent challenges.
- ... fostering multicultural wellbeing across our organization and communities.
- ... recognizing and challenging systems of discrimination and work to improve health equity for marginalized communities.
- ... fulfilling our mission with authenticity, honesty, and accountability.

Prevention services teams provide low-barrier, sex-positive, shame-free, confidential sexual health services.

We believe our clients are the best qualified persons to make decisions about their health. In addition to providing testing services, our team is equipped to help Coloradans access any information, resources, and referrals that might be relevant to their sexual health. Our prevention staff help people brainstorm behavior changes, provide education about HIV and STI transmission and treatment options, and always strive to reduce community stigma and anxiety around HIV and STIs through education and affirming care.

Prevention services are provided completely free of charge, confidential, and are available to anyone.

"With CHN, knowing my status is simple."

“With CHN, I know aging
with HIV is possible.”

Our Healthy Aging Program tailors support to the evolving needs of older people living with HIV.

Our flagship programs, PATH2Wellness (People Aging & Thriving withHIV; PATH) and iCHANGE (Integrative Care for Healthy Aging & Navigation of Geriatric Effects), aim to enhance quality of life and social connections for clients aging with HIV. While effective treatments have drastically improved the quantity of life for people living with HIV (PLWH), aging with HIV is associated with significant challenges that impact quality of life.

Our program addresses the physical, social, and mental health needs of older PLWH and offer a range of opportunities to support the health and well-being of clients, including weekly Social Circle, group walks, and aging services.

Our iCHANGE project offers non-diagnostic assessment of geriatric-related vulnerabilities, individualized care plan development, and coordinated aging service navigation.

55%
of CHN's clients living with HIV are aged 50 and older. Our oldest client is 93 years of age.

On average, our iCHANGE clients are 62 years of age and have lived with HIV for 24 years

Our comprehensive, evidence-based services reduce infectious diseases, connect individuals to essential healthcare services, and save lives.

CHN's harm reduction services are anonymous programs offering life-saving overdose prevention supplies and education. Our practices include a continuum of care designed to ensure safer use and reduce the transmission of illnesses such as HIV and Hepatitis C. Our behavioral health clinicians work adjacent to our prevention services teams to offer program participants the opportunity to receive no-cost, no-insurance, walk-in behavioral health services and referral to treatment and support.

30 years of dental care experience serving those affected by HIV. As a specialty oral health care clinic, we represent the link between dentistry and medicine.

CHN's dental clinic is named in memory of Dr. John Howard who was one of the first dentists in the Denver community to treat patients with HIV/AIDS. The Center began seeing HIV-positive patients on December 16, 1994. Today, any individual living with HIV or other health conditions, may become a dental patient with Howard Dental Center. Fees are based on family size and income. We currently accept Medicaid, Medicare, and Private Insurance, and will assist clients with insurance enrollment assistance through our Health Access Program.

Dental services are currently available at the Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Fort Collins offices.

Medical and client services teams dedicated to serving people living with HIV and other health conditions.

At Colorado Health Network, we provide care that makes our clients feel respected and valued just as they are. Our philosophy supports inclusiveness by valuing all people and serving them in an environment that is respectful, honest, and builds on significant participation and input from those we serve. We are dedicated to serving people living with HIV, people living with HCV, individuals interested in PrEP services, and individuals interested in gender affirmation therapy. For individuals who fit these criteria, the Colorado Health Network Medical Clinic offers medication management, primary care services, and in-house lab work.

Our client services team includes HIV Medical Case Managers who help those living with HIV understand how to best manage their healthcare, partner with clients to develop a comprehensive care plan, and provide care monitoring. Case Managers advocate for clients specific health care concerns, and any needed community referrals to keep them healthy.
